Dear Family of CBS,

I am pleased to see our students all working steadily and improving in their academic performances. It is also a pleasure to see excellent participation in various activities in school and after school. There have been some outstanding performances, art displays and beautiful write-ups. Keep up the good work! The academic year 2016-17 has been very busy with a lot of interesting activities and developments.

We thank you parents for your participation as your inputs play a vital role in improving the school. I trust that we will have your continued support as we continue this process.

A large part of CBS, success is the able academic leadership and strong administrative support. I thank you for your commitment and effort. To the teachers in particular, each one of you has played an essential role in bringing your students to the points they have reached in their journey of growth. Thank you for your dedication and perseverance.

As you prepare for the summer vacation, I wish you all a safe and enjoyable couple of months. Students, please remember to spend at least half an hour reading a book of your choice every day. I look forward to seeing you all return, charged and happy to handle another year of learning.

Best regards.

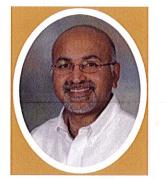

Mr. Hamad Mejrn Al Hamad Chairman

A Message from K.O. Mathew

Dear students, teachers and parents of Canadian Bilingual School:

It's been a gratifying year and I am extremely pleased with the successes of this year.

This year we have introduced, in a more focused manner, the 'Balanced Literacy' Program. The expectation for students to improve their reading and writing skills has developed some excellent writing skills with measurable improvements in reading. Keep up the good

Congratulations to all students for the enthusiasm exhibited during the International Day, National day, Sports Day, Young Authors day, Anti-Bullying week and Healthy Living week. I'm sure that the students had some wonderful opportunities to learn about countries around the world, prepare a good quality of school work, have fun, and learn about the importance of mutual respect and the significance of a healthy lifestyle.

I would like to reiterate the importance of students arriving in school on time: daily school attendance directly improves student learning and therefore achievement levels. A request for parental support in this matter is paramount to ensuring student success. The teachers and administrators cannot improve student learning on their own. A collaborative partnership with parents in ensuring that their children are in school daily on time, will help improve learning levels.

A continuing focus at Canadian Bilingual School has been on staff development this year and we had Mr. Stephen Mc Combe from the International School of Leadership in Canada train our staff on improving 'instructional practices' to engage students better in developing skills for learning. A special thanks to the staff who signed up for the training, which I hope will influence your teaching practice at CBS.

A word of appreciation to the CBS teachers who made the Math and Science Fairs a success, where the classrooms presented some engaging activities and student work. Such wonderful events.

I appreciate the individual and collaborative efforts of the administrative and management teams who have worked seamlessly in the background to support the school in guaranteeing a smooth and successful year. Thank you for your able leadership.

I look forward to seeing all our students back next year with vigor to face another fruitful year. Elementary students, please remember to do your daily work in the summer school books you take home. This will help you remember all you have learned this year and help you prepare appropriately for the new school year in September 2017.

Happy Summer Holidays!

Yours Sincerely. K. O. Mathew Managing Director

A Message from High School Principal - 2016 - 17

Would like to take this opportunity to recognize and thank the high school staff for the incredible job they have done with their students this year. Their professionalism and commitment to the students they teach have resulted in excellent academic gains over the year.

A yearbook captures the memories of a school year. This edition is no exception as it contains photographs, artwork and the written work of students from all grades. Your sons and daughters have participated in many events this year in addition to the activities that happen every day in their classrooms. Through the fall students participated in activities associated with the Hajj celebrations, the Islamic New Year, student council elections and activities, the Walk for the Cure, career fairs in and outside the school, Anti-Bullying Week, Fun Day, and International Day.

The winter term featured activities such as the Math Fair, Candy Gram Day, National Day Celebrations, and Sport Day. The spring term rounded out the year with the Islamic Fair, Business Week, our Talent Show, the Healthy Living Event, Science Fair and GUST Math Competition.

Graduation for our grade twelve students marks the end of a journey at CBS that for many began in kindergarten right here in this school. Although many of our students will be studying in the prestigious Kuwaiti universities, several students have acceptances to universities in Canada and Britain. We wish them all the best in their future endeavors.

As you read through this year's yearbook, reflect on the accomplishments your children have achieved, the friendships they have made, and the joy they have had every day as they continue their journey at CBS.

Thank you again for this opportunity to recognize the members of the Yearbook Committee, their hard work and diligence as well as the support that have had from the staff and students at CBS.

Mr. Dayne Honsberger

A Message from Elementary Principal – 2016 - 17

School will always be one of the most memorable stages in our lives. Our school years are filled with friendships made and lost, adventures during school trips, extracurricular activities, our favourite teachers and special events that highlight our days throughout the school year.

It is with great pleasure that we present to you the 2016/2017 Canadian Bilingual School yearbook as a celebration and lasting memory of the 2016/2017 school year. It has truly been a very full year of achievement and engagement in classroom activities and extra-curricular activities that have enhanced student development physically, socially and in their academic learning. As educators we feel very fortunate to be a part of your child's formative years of growth and development.

On a daily basis our lives are enriched by the learning and experiences we share together.

In our tenth year of operation, the Canadian Bilingual School continues to move forward towards improving programs, instructional practices and monitoring processes to ensure we are providing the best opportunities for our students and are effectively assessing and monitoring student improvement to ensure their success.

On behalf of the Canadian Bilingual School staff, I would like to thank all our parents for supporting our efforts in creating memories that will last a lifetime for our students!

Friendship means love; Friendship is the building of relations between one and another – it is what causes positivity in life. Just like the sun, friendship blooms your day up when you are sad, because a friend always would be by your side. Friendship is a long stairway leading to the sky. You might trip or fall on the way but you always have to keep going and pushing forward. Friendship may not always be what you think of it, it may be troublesome sometimes but if you keep positivity, and keep going forward, you might just earn everything you need in life. Just remember that in life "nothing is easy to gain, work hard and your efforts will always be rewarded."

LOST IN BRAZIL

I went on an exciting school trip to Brazil with my classmates. We went to a beautiful part of the Amazon, and I wanted to discover the beauty of it. My friends and I were talking about whether we should stay or leave. When we left our place, we saw this big and beautiful waterfall. This waterfall planted the desire to jump off it. I convinced my friends to jump with me, but some of them thought that it is a bad idea. So, I wanted all of them to jump with me, because I jumped first so that they can know whether or not it was safe to jump. When I jumped, I felt so alive, because I felt fresh from the cooled air and felt that I can fly. This jump is the best thing that ever happened to me. The moment I told my friends that it was safe, my friends yelled "Look back! There is a river!" At first I thought it's just a river, but when I saw it, I saw the biggest current I saw in years. The waves were so fast and strong, at that moment it was hard for me to breathe and it was impossible to see. It pushed me so hard into the bushes, that I was stuck, only to find out that it was a home to a group of beavers. Finally, when I was in a safe zone, I pulled my phone and hoped that it would work, but it didn't, because it was out of charge.

The only thing that worked was my gold painted watch and my waterproof camera. Then I started walking, hoping to find a road or someplace that led to people. I started to see monkeys, I was amazed how fast they could climb. When I pulled out my camera, an ugly and fast monkey stole it from me. I became really angry after the monkey started annoying me, I yelled repeatedly, "Return my camera you ugly monkey!" When I stopped, all of the monkeys started to freak-out. I froze for a half a second, then, I ran the other way, so that I could survive the misery.

I ran 2-3 kilometers away from those crazy monkeys. When I stopped to drink water from the river, I heard footsteps. It sounded like an army of people. It was so loud that I thought that I was near a city or a crowded street but I wasn't. When I saw them, I literally felt like it was my end. They were yelling "Yanomami, Yanomami, Yanomami". They grabbed me and we went to their base and they told me to speak with their head. I didn't care who I spoke with, the only thing I cared about is returning home alive. I did not understand their head, and he did not understand me either. So, I tried to explain, using visual signs with my hands, to tell him that I was lost and I needed help. All of them were staring at my gold painted watch. I really didn't like it so I gave it to them and after that moment, they gave me a map and showed me where I was on the map. At that time, it was dusk and it was hard to see so I memorized the map because I didn't have the resources. I saw cars and a restaurant, so I ran the fastest I could, because they were closing. When I approached a man I told him my story and that I needed a charger so I charged my phone. I charged my phone successfully. When it got to 5% I called my friend Jack and told him to arrange a taxi for me

When the taxi arrived I was so happy and kissed the taxi's head. I returned to the motel and told my friends what happened, in the end, we all laughed and enjoyed this adventure.

Rapunzel

Everyone must have seen Disney's "Tangled"! The cartoon movie about the girl with the long hair? Lives in a tower? Ring any bells? Well, if you have, you will be surprised to learn that this story is adapted from a much darker version previously written by the Grimm Brothers. The first difference between both stories, would be the reason why Rapunzel was stolen. The Grimm Brothers version, Rapunzel was technically not stolen, but given to the Witch by the parents as payment. In the story, a baker's wife wishes for some of the Witch's garden grown vegetables, so he stole some from her. When the Witch found out what had been stolen from her, she decided to kidnap Rapunzel! Contrary to the original the remade version by Disney was told differently. In this story the King's wife falls ill while pregnant, and the only way to heal was by consuming a magical flower. The Kings men bring back the flower, helping the Queen back to her normal self. Unknowingly to them the flower belonged to the Witch. It helps her restore her youth, which leads her to stealing the child. Her reason for stealing the child was that after the Queen ate the flower, its magic was given a new home in her child, and the Witch needs to stay youthful. The reasons behind Rapunzel's separation from her parents is the first main difference in the both stories.

The second difference between both stories, would be the love interest. In the original plot, Rapunzel falls for the King's son who finds her in a tower one day whilst on a stroll in the woods with his horse. Every day after discovering the tower and the angelic singing voice from inside, the Prince would try to find a way in. One day, he finds a way into the tower without the Witch noticing and falls in love with Rapunzel at first sight. In the Disney remake, there never was a Prince, but a thief for whom Rapunzel falls for. The thief, named Flynn Ryder, was on the run, when he stumbled upon the tower and decided to hide there. Upon finding out that there was a stranger in the tower, Rapunzel proceeded to knock him out with a pan. Later on a deal gets made between them, so they set out on their adventure where along the way they fall for each other. The identities of Rapunzel's love interest is the second main difference in both stories.

The third and last difference between both stories, would be the reason Rapunzel saves her loved one. In the Grimm Brothers version, the Prince would go blind from the thorns poking his eyes. After the Witch finds out about the affair between the Prince and Rapunzel, fueled by anger she cuts Rapunzel's locks, takes her and leaves her in a deserted place. After she leaves Rapunzel, she returns to the tower waiting to inform the Prince that he will never have his love again. Full of grief he jumps off the tower to kill himself, but ends up blind, lost and alone. On the other hand, in Disney's adaptation Flynn gets stabbed in the back trying to save Rapunzel. Yet in both stories, Rapunzel magically heals her true love by her tear drops.

Snow White

Remember that Disney princess who goes to live with Seven Dwarves? A story with some Evil Queen constantly obsessed with a mirror? If you guessed Snow White, you're right! Also, like Rapunzel, Snow White's origins too come from a much darker place. The Disney version of Snow White is very different than the Grimm Brothers version. The Disney version is one that contains a happy ending and is viewer friendly. However, the original version is very different. In the original, Snow White is not the smartest person in the world. The queen has not only tried to kill Snow White once, but has tricked her and attempted to kill her three times. Disney changed it to the queen only trying to kill Snow once.

They might have changed this to only one attempt, so they would not see their heroic Disney princesses murdered over and over and it might be influential to some kids who might end up accidentally doing things that they should not. Every time disguised as a different person, the Queen tried to kill her with a bodice, a poisoned comb, and then a poisoned apple. Whenever Snow White opened the door to the queen, she found the Queen dressed in three different disguises: an old peddler woman, an old saleswoman, and lastly as a peasant woman. The Queen must have been a master of disguise since Snow White could not figure out who the old woman was.

In the Disney movie, she was portrayed as a fair young maiden in her teens, which was acceptable. In the original, she was merely a seven year old, so she was just a kid. Disney changed this because they would not want their younger audiences to see that children are vulnerable to the adults' negative actions. Keep this in mind about the other differences. The Queen was changed in the Disney version. In the original, she was very determined. She could have done the job much easier and end her suffering but she chose the hard way and suffered even more in the end.

It is believed in the original version that she ate Snow's lungs and liver. This was also changed because it seemed too brutal and gruesome for the younger audiences to read about a woman eating her daughter's organs. It just seemed too much for little kids to handle.

Gulf War

On August 2, 1990, at sunrise, Kuwait was awoken to the sound of tanks and bombs of the Iraqi army which invaded Kuwait by the order of the Iraqi president, Saddam Hussain.

Several battles occurred between the Kuwaiti and the Iraqi army, until orders were given to the Kuwaiti army to pull back and go to Dasman Palace, to escort the Amir out of Kuwait. When the orders were given to pull back, the Ministry of Defence, Ministry of Interior Affairs, and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs fell, which led to the collapse of Kuwait. This would later be known as the Gulf War.

Kuwait and the UAE increased the production of oil leading to the decrease of oil prices, which led to collapse of the Iraqi economy.

Operation Desert Storm began on January 17, 1991, a day after the deadline date finished that the UN gave to Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. This operation saw the formation of an alliance. The alliance army was split into three sections. One part of the army was in the Saudi Arabian Kuwaiti border to protect Saudi Arabia from any sudden or surprise attack from the Iraqi army. Another entered Kuwait to fight the Iraqi army that was in Kuwait. The rest entered south Iraq to cut any supplies that came from Iraq to the Iraqi army in Kuwait. The Iraqi army in Kuwait was totally destroyed and on February 26th, 1991 Kuwait was free when Saddam ordered his army to leave.

The importance of this war is that it made the Kuwaiti people stand up together as one. When Kuwait was invaded the Kuwaiti people said that Saddam invaded Kuwait. They didn't say Saddam came to kill the Shias or came to kill the Sunnis and because of that there is no difference between Shias and Sunnis in Kuwait because they stood up for each other. It was important also because the Al-Sabah family understood and realized how loyal Kuwaitis were.

Tourism in Kuwait

The Liberation Tower is the second tallest tower in Kuwait. They used to call this tower the Kuwait Tele-communications Tower. Its construction began before the Iraqi invasion and then had to be stopped. Luckily, the structure suffered no damage during the conflict and was eventually completed. It was given the name "Liberation Tower" because it was completed after Iraqi forces were expelled from Kuwait.

Another piece of famous architecture in Kuwait are the Kuwait International Towers, which are a group of three slender towers. These towers are now a world renowned cultural and touristic landmark.

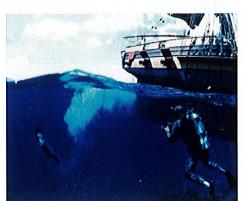

The towers were officially inaugurated as a tourist attraction in Kuwait and as an icon of modern Kuwait in 1979. The Kuwait Towers consist of a mixture of various colors that symbolize the harmony between the blue sea waters and the rising sky in Kuwait. Due to their importance to Kuwait, they are placed in the heart of Kuwait and can be seen from many miles away.

CRUISE CONTROL NO MORE

Once upon a time, I went on a cruise with my family around the Far East. This cruise was marvelous as compared to the other cruises that I had been on. There were many fun activities on the cruise, like shows and plays. The food was very tasty and delicious. The best thing about the food was that it was free. I had actually gained a few pounds since I came on the cruise. I had never been so happy in my life.

It was evening and the sun was setting. I grabbed an iced tea from the bar on deck and sat on a sofa. The sofa was positioned in a direction whereby I could see the sunset clearly. I've never seen a sunset this beautiful. The sun was reflecting on the water, which made the view astonishing.

Suddenly, the ship shook. Everyone was shocked and scared. We were also curious about what happened. Was it an earthquake? Was it a malfunction in the ship engine? Then, the captain spoke on the microphone and said that we just experienced an earthquake! The people on the cruise, all to no avail. I could see deep inside the parent's eyes that they were scared. I on the other hand, was calm. I did not care that the earthquake happened. It was going to be a fun memory later that I would get to tell my friends.

However, I was concerned for my family's safety. So, I went to the phone on deck and called my family's stateroom. They were worried about me and about my safety I told them that I was fine and I'll stay on the deck. I wanted to observe the situation, as curiosity is a habit of mine. While the tremors were still being felt by the passengers on deck, I bought myself an ice cold Pepsi, because I thought that was appropriate thing to do. I was sipping my Pepsi while people were going mad. It was very amusing to me because they were overreacting. "An earthquake happened, so what?" School will begin in a month and that's much worse.

Suddenly, something unexpected happened. A huge wave was coming towards us, it was a TSUNAMI! It was coming from the direction of the sunset. I never thought something so calm and beautiful like water, could turn so violent and destructive. An elder woman was screaming, "The end is nigh! The end is nigh! Run away! The end is nigh!" That did not faze me at all. People were running way. I did not run, not because I wasn't scared, but because I was! My legs were glued to the deck, my heart beat intensified, I stopped thinking straight. I had never been so frightened in my life. As the wave came closer, my heart beat faster. I could see death approaching, I was about to meet my maker. All I could do was stand and smile. Perhaps that would quell the tsunami and make it merciful to me...but the tsunami cared not. Nature, does not submit to the will of man, it is not controlled by money, and it definitely does not care about how much wasta I have.

UPHILL CLIMB

On one eventful day, I went to the beach next to my hotel along with Mishary and Mohammed Al-Sayyar. We climbed cliffs, shot each other with air soft guns, discovered places, and fooled around like crazy kids. Before we reunited with the others to hang out, we decided to climb one last cliff. It was the longest cliff we ever climbed! We always assumed that it was hard to climb it without even trying. So, Mishary tried first, and have a series of the series and have a series of the series tried first, and he was successful. In the process I realized that it was difficult and may cause me some injuries. I knew that it wasn't worth trying, but I did it anyways. Then, I got halfway up and got stuck. Now, I was left with only two choices: either continue climbing upwards or risk plummeting to certain death. The rock that I was holding was not stable. I was pretty sure that I climbed the same path as Mishary, but there was no way to get past where I was. In whead, I was thinking about getting down and backing up, but Mishary and AI-Sayyar were you can't!"...as if my life was depending on it. Now that I think back to that moment, the stuff they were saying wasn't motivational at all. They were actually saying that I was a chicken, a loser or even that I don't have the guts to do it.

Despite all their negativity, I was not scared or anything, but even with these words, I listened to my heart for the first time. I backed up and watched Al-Sayyar climb. In my head I said Y.O.L.O. (You Only Live Once) MK. That means that I shouldn't risk my life over a stupid cliff. There will be others to climb. However, to this day, it still eats me alive that as a fat person, me making my way back down, I realized that the rock that he was standing on was the same one that I held and felt it wasn't stable. I didn't have the chance to warn him. I remember seeing him falling towards me. All 100 kilos of him. If falling off the cliff didn't kill me, he landing see him trying to reach for any rock that he could find to grab onto. As I was watching him, I my sister who I despised.

At this moment, there was one little thing that was bothering me. I didn't want to die until I finish my delicious meal that I saved from yesterday. So, I was thinking, "No, this is not how my life ends. This is not how I go out. Not by someone landing on me, I want to finish that one of a kind juicy meal under the bed!" But because everything was moving in slow motion, I was able to dodge him as he fell down just at the right moment. As he continued his descend down past me, I was able to catch hold of his hand before he hit the ground. I don't know how I did, but I did. And I saved his life, and also Spain from what would've felt like an earthquake. Al-Sayyar wasn't hurt so bad, he just had some little cuts from sliding on rocks. He was a champ, he didn't lay down and complained. In fact, he did the exact opposite. He stood up and laughed as if nothing happened at all.

Oscar and Alphonse

Sally was a young girl with a short brown hair and black eyes. Sally was an only child. She had had a rough childhood since her step father used to abuse her. Sally didn't have friends in school or even outside. They thought she was a crazy girl because she always had two caterpillars in her hand and always used to whisper to them.

One day her mother came into her room red faced and she was extremely mad. She told Sally to throw away the caterpillars but Sally refused. She started to cry and scream until her mother went out of the room. What people didn't know was that the caterpillars and Sally had a great relationship. Sally said everything to them and talked to them to feel better; and only they knew her deepest secrets and sorrows. They would answer back if she wanted advice.

One day followed another and Sally still didn't have any friends. She started to doubt her own sanity and whether the caterpillars could actually hear her. One day Sally was in school, eating her lunch and spending her time all alone when a boy called Sam came up to her to ask about her relationship with the caterpillars. She told him every single thing about them. She was very happy because nobody ever gave her a chance to speak. Sam and Sally went together to her backyard and

Sally talked to the caterpillars but they did not answer back. Sam looked at her as if she was insane like everyone did. She told him, "Wait please! I can prove it to you", but he replied, "No that's it Sally, I'm going now."

She was very sad and mad at the caterpillars because they hadn't answered. She asked them why they betrayed her, and they said, "You're a special person so we can't speak in front of others." Then she knew it was time to send them back. She was slowly beginning to realize that if she kept them she would have no friends and people would forever think she was crazy. The caterpillars softly wiggled in her hand spelling out, "goodbye". After that she lived a normal life and started to make new friends.

Young Author's Day

The writing below is just a sampling of what students wrote and shared on Young Author's Day. Writing has two domains: the first is how you write which includes spelling and grammar, and the second is what you write which speaks to the logical and creative thought processes. Not all of the pieces below are perfect examples of grammar and spelling, but they all demonstrate our students' understanding of different genres and ability to retell, revise, and invent stories. Enjoy!
